700 pupils sent home nauseated...

CAUSTIC STINK CAUSED CHAOS

Steps have been taken by the Altona Petrochemical Company to prevent a recurrence of Friday's big stink.

Machinery installed only two weeks ago was the cause behind the release of caustic into the atmosphere.

The caustic hung over Altona for most of the weekend and was first detected on Friday morning.

A strong north westerly blew it over the city and caused 700 pupils at Altona High School to be sent home suffering from nausea.

About half of the school's staff of 38, including principal Mr. George Shee an asthma sufferer, were affected.

Sixty pupils did not return from lunch.

Mr. Shee told the Star that he had informed the Education Department of his action in sending the pupils home.

The department had agreed to the move.

He said "It was the worst day I can remember in my four years at the school but certainly not the first time pupils have been affected by this sort of odor.

"Steps should be taken to employ more people to police the manufacturers who cause pollution in our atmosphere.

"I think that it is most unfair for industry to do this to the people in the area and its employees.

"Pupils cannot be expected to work in that atmosphere."

General Manager of Altona Petrochemical Co. Ltd. Mr. Donald McMillen says that the company had not known the limitation of the machinery when it was installed two weeks ago.

The leak of caustic was caused when the limitation was surpassed.

Mr. McMillen says that he cannot understand why children at the schools were affected.

He says "The smell is certainly unpleasant but not toxic.

"It is what we call a sour smell and is caused by sulphur in the regenerating process.

He says "To prevent this recurring we have changed operating procedure, made minor equipment additions designed for controlling the variables in the caustic."

In a statement to the

Petrochem take steps to prevent recurrence

citizens of Altona Mr. McMillen says: "Unusual and unexpected conditions within recently commissioned caustic neutralising facilities of the Altona Petrochemical Company caused spent caustic odors to be released from these facilities during the afternoon of Friday, November 19.

"These odors, while not pleasant, are not toxic."

Corrective action by company personnel on becoming aware of the situation stopped the release and quickly returned plant conditions to normal. Steps have been taken to prevent the recurrence of the conditions which caused the problem.

"We apologise for any inconvenience or discomfort caused to the residents of Altona by this unfortunate incident."

The matter was brought before Altona Council on Tuesday night.

Altona's Chief Health Inspector, Mr. J. Mellor said that the matter had been investigated by his department.

Members of the clean air division of the State Health Division were in Altona over the weekend and on Monday.

FIREFIGHTER PRAISED

Altona council has sent a letter of congratulations to David Luck of Seves St., for the part he played in a recent firefighting exercise at the BP plant in Kororoit Creek Rd.

David was senior member of the ACI team which won the fire extinguisher exercise and he received the award for his team.

Commenting on David's effort, at the recent council meeting, Cr. Ian Stewart moved that council write to David. David was unable to attend the meeting due to a basketball commitment.

A sketch of the Altona West Primary School's new $40,000 complex. The complex which will be built stage by stage as finance is available, comprises a library, gymnasium and arts and crafts centre.

Away from the old...

The Altona West Primary School's new library will be part of a complex of three buildings.

The other two buildings will comprise: an arts and crafts centre and a gymnasium and all-purpose hall.

The school's architect, Mr. Kevin Nakin, explained that the complex would cost in the region of $40,000 but this would be split up over a period of years as finance became available.

Direction from the Education Department dictated the the library part of such a complex be finished first. The priority of the other two buildings will be determined by the school's needs.

"I have designed several similar complexes for schools throughout the Metropolitan area," Mr. Nakin said.

Advantages

"They are designed as an entity with the closest liaison with the school, committee and the principal.

"The advantages of such a complex are that they are cheaper to construct, can be made more attractive and are built for a group of activities not tied in with the other classrooms.

"Every effort has been made for this complex to blend in with the design of the school as a whole while still retaining a distinctive and modern appearance."

More space

Altona West's complex will provide extra storage space for sports equipment, a stage, gymnastic equipment, room for a full school assembly, a fully equipped arts and crafts centre.

The library will start with a minimum of 6000 books.

The school committee's treasurer, Mr. I. Haskell said the rest of the complex would be built as finance became available and this was dependent on the generosity of parents and the availability of Government grants.

Students help foot the bill

Pupils at Altona West Primary School have raised over $2000 for their new library.

The money was raised when the school held a spelling contest and staff, parents and pupils have expressed amazement at the response.

All children in the school took part and the words varied in difficulty depending on grade and age.

Pupils called from door to door in the areas collecting sponsors for the 30-word spell-a-thon test.

For a week teachers exercised the pupils in different uses of the words on their particular lists.

At the end of a week they were asked to fill in a 30-word form.

Big task

Grade one teachers had the most difficult task, with each pupil having to be tested individually, with sounds and one syllable words.

The school's principal, Mr. Blackie said that the response had far outreached that expected.

The school would have been more than pleased if $1000 had been raised.

Says a lot

"This is a working class area where people are not the most wealthy in the world, and it says a lot for those people and the tremendous community spirit they have to respond to an appeal like this," Mr. Blackie said.

The contest was organised by one of the school's teachers, Mr. T. Burgess.

Its success has meant that the library, to be completed next year, will be fitted with audio visual equipment immediately.

The school committee's treasurer, Mr. I. Haskell said that he would like to thank all parents, on behalf of the committee, for their generosity and assistance.

Your rates at work

● Sanitary contract: During September, 15 complaints were received and an amount of $23 will be deducted from monies due to the contractor this month. The contractor's representative calls each day and attends promptly to any complaints and requests for new services.

Thief was thirsty

Half a dozen bottles of beer, a bottle of lemonade and a gladstone bag containing a blue jumper and two books on greyhound racing, was the tally of a thief who entered an unoccupied car in a Grievous Parade driveway recently. The items were stolen from the Falcon station sedan owned by Mr. George Sherriffes of Grievous Parade, they were valued at $16.

Vandals on rampage?

A group of vandals on the rampage in Altona, recently, may have been responsible for the smashing of six fluorescent lights at Seaholme station, the breaking of a house window in Fenfield Street, Altona, and the breaking of a side window of a car parked in Queen Street.

At midnight on November 12, Mr. Lawrence Bickley heard a group of youths outside his house in Fenfield Street.
He heard a glass window smash and went outside to investigate. The youths ran off and Mr. Bickley could not see any damage.
"But" next morning he discovered a front window broken.
The smashing of the fluorescent tubes at Seaholme station occurred between 8.30 p.m. on November 12 and 5.10 a.m. on November 13.

The breakage was discovered by the station master, who estimated the damage at $10.
The third incident occurred between midnight and 7.30 a.m. on November 13, when a side window on a Valiant station wagon owned by Mr. Harold Petersen of Queen Street was smashed.
The car was parked on Mr. Petersen's lawn and it is believed a small stone or air rifle slug did the damage estimated at $20.
All three incidents of vandalism were reported to Altona Police.

BATTERY STOLEN

Mr. John Newton of Millers Road, has reported to Altona police the theft of a 12-volt battery from his Holden Premier station wagon.
Mr. Newton said the vehicle was parked inside an Altona car yard. The yard was enclosed by a cyclone wire fence.
When he returned he found the bonnet had been forced and the battery removed.

New Valiant Hardtop

In June this year Chrysler Australia's chairman and managing director, Mr. D. H. Brown, told a Press conference that his company would shortly introduce a new luxury car which would be one of the best equipped models in its class in the world and ahead of any comparable vehicle manufactured in Australia.

This month the company's dealers are exhibiting the Chrysler, a superbly finished car challenging the top bracket of Australian products and competing with imported models costing much more.

Standard equipment in the Chrysler includes power-assisted steering and disc brakes, power-operated windows, push-button radio with a power-operated antenna, a variety of interior lighting which extends to adjustable reading lamps for rear compartment passengers and carpeting which runs into the trunk. Front seating is of a special split-bench design providing maximum comfort for two or three people.

There are two new models, sedan and hardtop.

You can choose from the new 360 cubic inch V8 with two barrel carburettor or Hemi 265 six-cylinder (two barrel carb.) developing 203 bhp. The Chrysler's overall lines follow the sleek arrowhead shape.

Length is 19.6 inches, wheelbase 115 inches.

From the front the car is recognised immediately by a striking grille treatment with a loop bumper bar completely encircling the grille. The grille has a central feature character and incorporates dual rounded five-inch headlamps. The hood, distinguished by a raised centre feature, sweeps back to a limousine-type roof and rear window arrangement.

Horizontal rear lamps incorporating stop, turn signal and reversing lights are of the wrap-around type to provide side illumination visible to traffic from any direction.

Wide 7.35 white-walled tyres are standard equipment on the Chrysler.

Inside the car an overall impression of subdued luxury is strengthened by a special elm wood grain finish of the instrument panel. The instrument cluster is well placed visually and within an easy reach of the driver's hands. It carries a full range of edge illuminated gauges in rectangular frames for speedometer, clock, temperature, ammeter, oil pressure, fuel and brake warning lights. The soft grip two-spoke steering wheel features the same wood grain finish as the instrument cluster.

The floor mounted safety handbrake is well placed and the car has a full range of interior lighting, including lamps in the glove box and ash tray, courtesy light switches on all doors and floor illuminating lamps and following other top premium models, provides rear compartment passengers with adjustable reading lamps set into the roof side panels.

Door and rear window glass in the Chrysler is tinted to reduce glare, and the power-operated windows are controlled by switches on each door. The doors themselves are equipped with padded handles and covered with padded panels.

Both Chrysler models include a standard push-button radio with power-operated antenna and are fully carpeted in a soft, durable material.

The carpeting is extended to the trunk which has 31 cubic feet of luggage space.

Another courtesy lamp comes on when the trunk is opened.

The interior rear view mirror is prismatic to reduce glare, and the external mirror is controlled from inside the car.

Seating is distinguished by the design of the front seats (split-bench type). This provides for individual adjustment of each seat for two people or their use as a bench seat for three people when the seats are aligned. Both seats are separated, reclining, and have individual fold-down centre armrests. They have headrests for safety, extra comfort. Upholstery is nylon, trimmed with vinyl.

A power-assisted driver's seat which can be tilted, moved fore and aft or raised at the touch of a switch is optional.

The only other options are air-conditioning, a vinyl roof and a special search-tune radio combined with a cassette stereo-tape player.

The optional vinyl roof comes in three colors — black, parchment and a new Paisley grain material in brown.

Power-assisted steering is standard equipment, as are the powered front disc brakes.

Suspension is of a special design.

Front torsion bars are supplemented by an anti-sway bar in the front and special semi-elliptic springs at the rear.

The rear suspension is specially insulated from the rear axle by rubber pads as a protection against road noise.

The car is, in fact, built to be quiet over all kinds of roads.

GM mass transit experiment

A new bus passenger distribution concept that provides electronically controlled information signs to help passengers locate boarding areas has been developed by General Motors Research Laboratories for operation experimentally in Rochester, New York, by early 1972.

The object of the programme is to supplement the city's public transport system, and to test a concept that may go a long way toward easing some of the mass transit headaches found in many cities.

Buses would travel in groups of perhaps four vehicles and proceed along a controlled bus lane of a downtown street. The bus platoon would stop as a group at each station to load and unload passengers.

The goal of the programme is to provide faster bus system operation into and through downtown areas; increase efficiency of the passenger boarding process, and provide more street space for other vehicular traffic.

Since many buses will be arriving at a pick-up point at the same time, passenger loading could be a major problem. To solve this, each stopping point will be equipped with changeable message signs. These signs will be used to advise passengers in advance where to wait for a particular bus. The basic idea behind the Rochester experiment was first expressed as a concept as far back as the early 60s. The early analysis which was done by the GM styling staff as well as the Research Laboratories, probed into bus system performance, vehicle performance, driver behavior and passenger loading. The next step saw more work being done on the idea of the GM Milford Proving Ground. Conducted under simulated conditions, these tests reinforced the feasibility of the concept.

Williamstown's municipal free library wasn't so free for Mrs. Kathleen Green, of Bayview Street, when she went to the library one night last week.

Mrs. Green left her basket containing her purse on a shelf in the foyer of the library at the town hall while she selected a book.

She was in the library just 15 minutes.

When she returned, the purse was missing from the basket and with it went $40 and some private papers.

Safe stolen from shop

Safe thieves used a trolley to roll a safe from the premises of Hynes Fireplaces in Railway Place one night last week.

The safe contained $473 and 200 cigarettes, to the total value of $550, insurance policies and bank deposit books and cheques.

A side window was forced to get into the shop and the thieves then got into the accountant's office.

The safe, which was 24 in. by 30 in. in size, was in a cupboard.

After the safe was rolled out the trolley was left in Little Ferguson Street.

Williamstown detectives are investigating the breaking.

SGE Wins award desing

An impressive record of design developments and successful marketing of equipment in the scientific glass field was revealed when two products from Scientific Glass Engineering Pty. Ltd., of North Melbourne, were accepted for the Australian Design Index.

Mr. Ernest Dawes, who established the company in 1966, has a background of practical experience and research in glass engineering.

He saw the need for a new approach in the design of microlitre syringes and other laboratory accessories, and his ability to meet that need is borne out by the fact that more than 90 per cent of the company's production is exported.

This means that the Good Design Label received by Scientific Glass Engineering's microlitre syringes and Glaslok modular joining systems will be carried by those products to over 30 countries, including the United States, USSR, United Kingdom, China, Japan, South America and all countries in Western and Eastern Europe.

The company's overseas sales have become so extensive that it has been necessary to establish an office in London to assist in servicing those markets.

Simply and effectively packaged in foamed plastics, products can be airfreighted to meet orders anywhere in the world.

The fact that SGE has been able to produce a syringe with a removable needle without any increase in dead volume has given the company a valuable market lead.

In addition, the ease of assembly in joining combinations of glass, metal and plastics for laboratory work ensures continuing sales for the Glaslok connectors.

The company's guided plunger syringe has been designed to overcome a maintenance need.

The most commonly repaired part of a low capacity syringe is the plunger, and SGE have patented a solution to this problem. What they have done is to extend the glass barrel and increase the bore of the extension.

A strong stainless steel sheath which fits into the extension is silver soldered on to an extended plunger, and this makes it virtually impossible to bend the plunger.

Although the company is closely engaged in design development and is keenly aware that high product quality at competitive prices is vital to successful marketing, it is equally aware of the importance of keeping in close personal touch with overseas buyers.

Mr. Dawes' therefore makes frequent visits overseas to find out for himself what the buyers want.

Recently at an international scientific instrument exhibition in Ostrava, Czechoslovakia, the SGE Glaslok system was awarded a gold medal by the Czechoslovakian Ministry of Science.

FOOTBALL CLUB WAS REFUSED CLEARANCE

The application for a clearance by Altona Football Club was refused at the annual meeting of the Western Suburbs Football League on Friday, November 19.

The club wanted to make an application to enter the Footscray District League, because there was a sharp decline of senior playing members towards the end of the season.

This was brought about by the failure of the Western Suburbs Football League to create a worthwhile reserve senior eighteen competition.

Many players have indicated that they would think twice about returning for season 1972 if this situation persists.

Office bearers and committee for season 1972 are: President, W. H. Lee, JP; Vice-presidents, B. Brennan and P. Itter; assistant secretary, G. McColl; treasurer, E. Churchill; social secretary, N. Drew; assistant social secretary, W. Devereaux.

Committee: R. Rycroft, G. Brennan, Bill Brennan, Con Rosenbloom, J. Rielly, K. Schwabe, J. Butterworth, S. Grainger, Morrie Tisdale, B. Morgan.

Fort he first time in the history of Altona Football Club it was decided to advertise for applicants for the position of Secretary-Manager.

The successful applicant was Geoff Newman, who is a past secretary of the club and also a former player.

Geoff can be contacted on 399 2532 and his address is 11 Briggs Street, Laverton North.

In your time— — A GUIDE TO LEISURE

By Peter Vaughan

In selecting the books to review this week from those available at Knights Newsagency, Station Street, Werribee, I decided to pick authors from three different countries, England, France and Australia.

My Australian choice was Frank Hardy's The Outcasts of Foolgarah which is undoubtedly the author's best work to date including his infamous Power Without Glory.

The book concerns the plight of the Foolgarah garbage collectors who end up fighting the Shire Council, the Arbitration Commission, political parties, bureaucracy and even their own union in an effort to achieve what they consider to be justice.

Hardy is really telling us a great deal more about our society than would first appear if one takes the book at its very funny face value.

Like Power Without Glory I would not be at all surprised if this book becomes part of a label suit and through this, becomes a best seller.

My French author is Henri Charriere, the convicted murderer he says wrongly, who was sentenced to such French penal colonies as Devil's Island where he plotted and successfully accomplished a number of daring and almost unbelievable escapes.

His adventures as a convict have become the basis of his book Papillon in which he relates in vivid detail his life both as a prisoner and on the run.

One is led to two thoughts about this book; is it all really true, did it happen as Charriere says and if it did (and who will ever really know for sure) then what an indictment exists of the French judicial and penal systems?

My English author is D. H. Lawrence and his work Women in Love.

Of the three authors reviewed he is the only one not living. But his work will far outlast the previous two because what he has to say and the way he says it has made him one of the greatest novelists of all time.

In fact Lawrence has become very popular in the past few years since the furore over Lady Chatterley's Lover died down and with the filming of several of his novels of which Women in Love is one.

The tangled love affairs of Gudrun, Gerald, Birkin and Ursula set against the rapidly all-engulfing industrial society makes for vivid and thought-provoking reading.

Summary: F. Hardy The Outcasts of Foolgarah, Allara 1971, $2.50. H. Charriere Papillon, Panther 1970, $1.55.

D. H. Lawrence Women in Love, Penguin 1971, $1.70.
